Somewhere out there, is doom.

Nearly every day Earth is approached by an asteroid or two. Within the next week there are 40 massive chunks of space crud screaming silently through space that will come close enough to our planet for NASA to keep a watchful eye on their trajectory.

Just in case we need to evacuate.

13,204,178 km

distance from Earth of the closest asteroid worth tracking. They say it's going to miss us by 4,851,235 km. Is that suppose to make me feel better? It doesn't.

394

meters across of the smallest one. The biggest is 3268 meters. It's name is mrichardson7e and I'm pretty sure it's going to kill us all come close enough to be classified as hazardous

3/40
